Moravec appointed chief deputy secretary of state

LINCOLN – Ronald D. Moravec of Lincoln, who has served as Cass County attorney and an assistant Nebraska attorney general, has been appointed chief deputy secretary of state, according to Nebraska Secretary of State John Gale.

Moravec, 61, started work July 1 and will be paid $65,000 per year. He will serve as chief legal counsel for the office, among other duties.

“Ron brings a wealth of legal, government and management experience to this position,” Gale said. “He will be a great asset to help carry out my goal of providing quality public service in the areas entrusted to my office.”

Moravec succeeds Greg Lemon, who resigned to pursue other legal interests.

Moravec served as Cass County attorney from 1976-1994. He then moved to state government and worked as an assistant attorney general from 1994-2004. Most recently, he has served as a deputy Platte County attorney.
