Nebraska online filing system for corporations begins

LINCOLN – Users can now file a large variety of documents online with the Nebraska Secretary of State’s Office through the new Corporate and Business Document eDelivery System.

At this time, the system is being offered for documents of corporations only, including professional and nonprofit corporations.

“This system is the culmination of a major effort on the part of my office and will be the foundation for future online filings with the office,” said Secretary of State John Gale.

“Filers will find the electronic filing to be user-friendly and convenient,” he said. “This is part of my continuing push to make it easier to do business with the state through electronic government.”

The new system also should increase office efficiencies and reduce paper storage costs, Gale added.

The new system can be accessed through the secretary of state’s home page at www.sos.ne.gov.

In addition to the statutory filing fee for the document, there is an extra portal fee for using the online system.
